

WHAT DID THEIR STRATEGY CONSULTANTS LEAVE BEHIND?

Consultants can suggest plenty of big ideas, but if they don't collaborate with the whole organization, plans misfire and confusion abounds. A.T. Kearney is different. We team with the entire company. After all, it's not enough for ideas to be brilliant. They also need to be understood.

STRETCH YOUR TALENT

Who We Are

We're people who care deeply about what we help bring about at our clients, and we share a mindset and passion for achieving meaningful results. We're fluent in both Strategy and Operations – and the link between them – and our hands on, no-nonsense style enables us to work effectively with all levels of an organization. Our results and achievements do the talking.

So although we are one of the leading global strategic consultancy firms, with thousands of employees and offices in all the major cities around the globe, we are also different because of who we are.

Who We Work For

We aim to work with clients who are serious about major improvements in the way they carry out their businesses – both Top and Bottom line. Business leaders who don't think in terms of plans on paper, but in terms of real results, and who fully understand that sustainable competitive advantage is grounded in optimal operational performance. In short, clients who want to play ball.

Over the years, we've used our collaborative style of working to deliver tangible results to over 70% of the Fortune 100 companies, in many different industries.

What We Do

We bring our clients today's business improvements with tomorrow's mindset, using proven methodologies and approaches – combined with experience in what works and what doesn't – to form a solid foundation for creating substantial change. Strategically grounding our approach and continuously pushing the service envelope ensures that these business improvements are effectively geared towards tomorrow's business challenges – and therefore future-proof.

A Passion For Work...And For Life

Whether we are racing a Dragon Boat against our peers from other firms, taking over the ski slopes in Davos, or filling up the neighbourhood squash courts for an intra-office tournament, you can be sure that we bring to these activities all of the enthusiasm we have for our work, giving meaning to "work hard, play hard".

It doesn't stop there, though. The kind of person who has a hands-on, no-nonsense style of working and is able to work effectively with all organizational levels obviously does not just live to work.

Many A.T. Kearney consultants find the time to truly balance their professional lives with personal interests, and actively use sabbaticals to make even more out of their lives.

WHAT DID THEIR STRATEGY CONSULTANTS LEAVE BEHIND?

Consultants who only work with senior executives often leave more problems than they solve. A.T. Kearney collaborates with the entire team. We don't just bring big ideas. We help clients make them happen.

The Opportunity

We bought ourselves back early in 2006 to become a 100% partnership again. This effectively makes us a start-up with all the passion and entrepreneurial spirit that comes with it. A start-up, however, with the expertise, client base and heritage you would expect from an 80 year-old established company.

We are also serious about growth, and that's where you come in.

Strategy Consultants

We need bright, creative minds – with personalities to match our different approach – to help us fuel our growth. We're looking for people who combine intellectual curiosity and the ability to conceptualize with the practical ability to get things done – and who live this on a daily basis. Smart, driven personalities who want to let their character work for them to leave clients better than they found them.

Our ideal candidates will have a strong track record of academic and professional achievement, 3 to 8 years of outstanding industry expertise, and excellent communication in English, Dutch and preferably one other language. Proven leadership and facilitation skills are obviously also an integral part of the desired skill set.

Consultants will be working out of the Amsterdam area for A.T. Kearney's Benelux Unit. Visit our website to apply: www.atkearney.nl
